The Cervantes Group and Tech Risk Advisors Announce Strategic Cybersecurity Partnership

The Cervantes Group, a woman-owned technology and business transformation firm serving clients across the Americas and Europe, today announced a strategic partnership with Tech Risk Advisors, a technology risk management firm specializing in cybersecurity advisory, security architecture, and assessments. The alliance pairs Cervantes' global delivery and managed security capabilities with Tech Risk Advisors' executive-level security, risk, and compliance expertise.

Under the agreement, both firms will jointly deliver an integrated cybersecurity offering designed to serve enterprise and mid-market organizations across financial services, healthcare, manufacturing, and the public sector. The combined services span program strategy, compliance readiness, security architecture, and technical assessment—granting clients access to board-level CISO support alongside Cervantes' multilingual delivery teams and 20+ years of workforce and technology transformation experience across the United States, Puerto Rico, Spain, and Mexico.

"As cyber threats evolve and regulatory pressures increase, our clients need a seamless path from executive risk governance to technical execution," stated Joanna Bauzá, President & Founder of The Cervantes Group. "Partnering with Tech Risk Advisors allows us to expand our high-level security architecture and compliance capabilities, ensuring that our enterprise clients receive top-tier protection and strategic guidance."

"The strongest partnerships build on the distinct strengths of each organization. Combining specialized risk, compliance, and security expertise with an experienced technology consulting team that has a proven delivery record across the Americas and Europe creates a truly comprehensive solution. Together, we'll help clients integrate risk management into their broader business strategy, rather than treating it as a separate technology exercise," said Randy Herold, Chief Advisor at Tech Risk Advisors.

Joint services are available immediately.
